THE 1962 OWL

Sharon Hill High School
Sharon Hill, Pennsylvania

Volume 27

We, the senior class of 1962, are pleased to dedicate our yearbook to a man whose understanding and wit have inspired us many times during our last six years at Sharon Hill.

When Robert L. Scholl came to our school in 1955, he was elected to teach industrial arts. After one year in this position, he was assigned to biology, which has been his main occupation ever since. Having an active interest in our school and its activities, Mr. Scholl is the sponsor of the Future Teachers of America club. He is also the attendance officer, assistant director of the Athletic Association, and administrative assistant.

Before coming to Sharon Hill, Mr. Scholl attended Millersville State College, where he got his Bachelor of Science degree; he then went on to the University of Delaware, where he earned his Master's Degree. Between the time he received his degree and his start at Sharon Hill, he taught for four years at the Army Instructor's School situated at Aberdeen Proving Grounds.

Mr. Scholl was honored last summer when he received a National Science Foundation grant for the study of environmental biology at Rutgers University. He also has taken graduate courses at the University of Pennsylvania.

However, Mr. Scholl's interests are not limited to formal schooling alone. During the summers of 1955-60, he was the craft director at the Philadelphia Y.M.C.A. camp located near Downingtown, Pennsylvania. He is also a member and advisor to the youth program of his church and a Cub Scout committeeman. As an educational representative, he is active on the Delaware County Ethics, Rights, and Competence Committee, a member of the National Education Association, the Pennsylvania State Education Association, the Delaware County Science Teachers' Association, Chairman of the Merit committee at Sharon Hill, one of three Pennsylvania representatives to the National Salary Committee, and a representative to the Southeastern District Classroom Teachers' Department.

An active man at home, Mr. Scholl designed their present home, which is a good example of his hobby of drawing house plans. Another useful hobby he practices is carpentry. This hobby was put to use when he built our own OWL nook.

Mr. Scholl claims his third hobby is sports. We must agree when we see him with his wife, Shirley, and their three children—Gary, Melinda, and Todd—at many of the Sharon Hill events.

Last, but not least, in our memories of this teacher is the fun and work connected with our junior play, "Twelve Angry People," which Mr. Scholl directed.

It's not hard to see why we wish to honor you, Mr. Robert L. Scholl.

Foreword

Sharon Hill is nestled between two famous railroad systems, the "Pennsylvania" and the "Baltimore and Ohio." The conveniences offered by these railroads to the Sharon Hill residents is often taken for granted. Therefore, the 1962 OWL Staff has chosen as its theme "On the Tracks" in honor of the "Pennsy" and the "B & O."

We hope to show you, through the 1962 OWL, how these railroads are an integral part of our community and school life. Please join us as we whiz through our school year "On the Tracks."

Expansion and improvements keep education

Fire destroyed the second school.

Our Alma Mater today

A large house was adapted for use as Sharon Hill's first public school. A one-story building, which later had a second story added, was built on the corner of Ridley Avenue and Chester Pike in 1879 and served as the second school until fire destroyed it in 1925. The school was originally a branch of the Darby School System, and it remained so until 1891, when the Sharon Hill School District was organized.

In 1925, the central station of the present building was erected. Three years later, the addition of more grades prompted the building of a larger wing. A gymnasium-auditorium, a cafeteria, improved offices, an athletic field, and several classrooms were added between 1930 and 1939 to accommodate the increasing student population.

"on the tracks"

Sharon Hill also grew academically. The courses of study were improved, and a wider range of courses was made available to the pupils. After an evaluative study by the faculty and visiting experts in 1940, the school was accredited. The accreditation was renewed during the 1958-1959 school year by The Commission on Secondary Schools of the Middle Atlantic States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Sharon Hill school also offers an array of extracurricular activities which includes sports, music, journalism, and art. Extracurricular activities, in conjunction with the regular courses of study, prepare students with a well-rounded education.

Today, the Sharon Hill School System is dedicated to maintaining its high standards in all phases of student life.

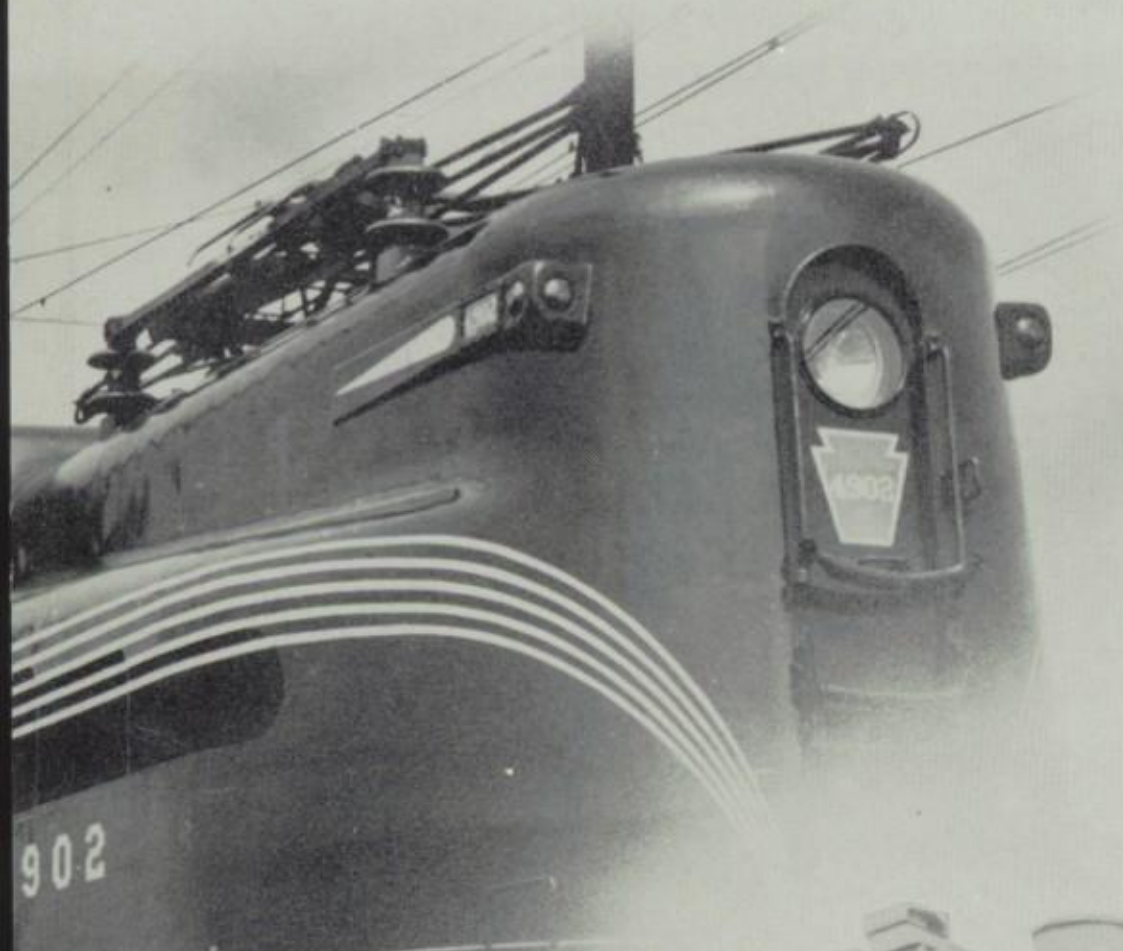
Modern "iron horse"

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's tracks are laid out in the northern portion of Sharon Hill, and they are almost parallel to the tracks owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The people of Sharon Hill are inclined to consider the B&O Railroad as primarily a freight-shipping line. It is true that the famous railroad transports numerous goods necessary to the livelihood of many business enterprises in this area. However, passenger service is included in their extensive railroad system.

and electric power advances "on the tracks"



The Pennsylvania Railroad System, whose tracks run through the southern part of Sharon Hill Borough, furnishes an efficient and convenient form of transportation for the residents of Sharon Hill. The "Pennsy" maintains two train stations, the Sharon Hill and the Curtis Park, so that commuters in all parts of the town may take advantage of the railroad's service.

The Pennsylvania Railroad handles, in addition to its outstanding passenger accommodations, the shipment of freight for distribution throughout the country.

Like Sharon Hill School, both the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad continually strive to discover methods for the improvement of their services.

Administration, Faculty and Curr

The administration is the force which keeps the school on the tracks. Its members are always seeking a better track on which the students may travel. En route, the faculty devotes much of its time to the students, as conductors devote much of their time to the comfort and welfare of the passengers who utilize the rail facilities.

Railroad employees know the value of time in reference to miles; the faculty of our school knows the value of time in reference to the education of the pupils. Every member of the faculty urges the students to make the best use of the time spent on their long and meaningful journey.

When the train and its passengers encounter a switch, the conductors, our faculty, give the students invaluable assistance in deciding which track to follow. This is definitely a turning point in our lives and a time when a guiding hand is greatly appreciated. The decisions made now will determine our future years.

The curriculum of our school is comparable to the tracks which a train follows. Our faculty feels that each student in this school must choose the particular course which best satisfies his needs. Sharon Hill is a small school; and, therefore, the curriculum may not vary too greatly. Nevertheless, like passengers, the students are granted the best possible facilities.

Our capable administration engineers

The Sharon Hill School Board is composed of seven members. Each of the members serves a term of six years. The members receive no compensation for their services except the knowledge of a job well done.

The Board's function is to act as the legislative body which determines general policies for the control, operation, and expansion of the school district.

Our School Board has done many things in the past years to further our education and make our school a more pleasant place in which to learn. The new gymnasium floor and bleachers, the teachers' lunchroom, and our own OWL work area are only a few of the many facilities brought about during the past summer through the endeavors of our most co-operative Sharon Hill School Board.

School board officers F. Koch and F. Yeager check over work with Mr. Le Donne, Supervising Principal.

school policy.

Mr. LeDonne is an unusually qualified Supervising Principal, the position which he has held since 1958. As the chief executive officer of the Board of School Directors, Mr. LeDonne sees that the policies adopted for the School District are carried out. In this capacity he works directly with the School Board, faculty, and students alike.

He gained valuable experience through teaching positions at Bell Township School District, Darby High School, and at our own Sharon Hill High School, where he taught Problems of Democracy and Social Living. He also served on the Sharon Hill faculty as Guidance Counselor and as coach of the varsity football team.

Mr. LeDonne holds a Bachelor of Arts degree, which he earned at Waynesburg College, and a Master of Education degree, which he received at Temple University. He is presently working on his Doctor of Education degree.

The recipient of many awards and achievement honors, Mr. LeDonne most recently was selected to the 1961-62 edition of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN EDUCATION. Sharon Hill is proud to be connected with someone so highly honored.

High School Principal and aides

Completing his fourth year as principal of Sharon Hill High School, Mr. Kuebler has, during his stay here, worked hard to improve the school and school life.

An alumnus of Ursinus College with a Bachelor of Science degree, Mr. Kuebler was awarded the degree of Master of Science in Education from the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Kuebler is aware of classroom and general school problems because of his many years of teaching experience and administrative work.

His appreciation and interest in the varied extracurricular activities is a result of his own experiences in coaching plays, debating, baseball, and advising yearbook staffs.

Mr. Kuebler, who is sincerely and actively interested in each and every student, has continually endeavored to promote school spirit, pride, and co-operation.

education

Mrs. Gilmore gave instruction to Frank Rock in the remedial reading course.

New in the English department was the weekly writing of themes, and our school was one of a few in the area which appointed a reader to correct the writing assignments. Applicants for the position were given an examination, and it was required that they hold a degree in English. Mrs. Healy, who was chosen, spent a full day each week in school. On this day she returned the themes, explained the corrections made, and gave personal aid and direction to the students.

The juniors in the College Preparatory English class, taught by Mr. Moore, wrote themes on tuberculosis, the best of which were published in the "Sha-Hi" and submitted to the Tuberculosis Association for entrance in competition.

Spanish, returned to the curriculum after an absence of many years, was taught by Mrs. Conquest to the students from Folcroft who had studied the language at Eddystone, their former school. The addition of Spanish supplemented our language department offerings, which also included Latin and French.

Full-time developmental and remedial reading classes were introduced at Sharon Hill this year. Mrs. Gilmore was the full-time reading instructor.

The basic purpose of the developmental reading classes was to determine the reading level of each student and to help him progress in reading skill from that point. The seventh and eighth grades who participated in the reading program attended Mrs. Gilmore's classes two periods each week. Those students who required concentrated individual instruction received additional aid in the remedial reading program.

Mr. Drake, the junior high school math teacher, received a National Science Foundation Grant. He attended classes at the Springfield, Pennsylvania, extension of the Pennsylvania State University.

The senior business math students studied income tax. Their teacher, Mr. Tinsley, explained the intricate workings of the tax structure and the correct method with which to approach the problem of filling out an income tax form.

The Problems of Democracy students obtained special student subscription rates for "Newsweek" magazine, and they informed themselves of current affairs by the weekly reading of the magazines as a class assignment.

The Fine Arts department was one of the busiest areas of the school curriculum. In addition to instructing high school classes, the teachers also supervised the elementary pupils.

Mrs. Bustard's music classes concentrated on contemporary music and musical comedies.

Mr. Johnson's art students added interest to the school building by drawing and painting murals which hung in the halls and cafeteria.

At the end of the year, the students displayed representative examples of their art work at an art exhibit in the school auditorium.

Practical training

The Junior High boys were given a course in shop the first two report periods, and they completed the year by studying mechanical drawing. Mr. Savastano created a greater interest among his students for the subject matter when he assigned various projects throughout the year.

Mr. Marshall, who was Director of the Delaware County Highway Safety Council, supplemented his regular classroom instruction with a film demonstrating the Smith System of driving. He also was the author of an article concerning the Free-loan method of driving which he presented at the Pennsylvania driving conference.

Besides giving instructions in cooking and sewing, Mrs. Parker taught a class in textiles and fabrics. This class, composed of senior girls, took a trip to John Wanamaker where they saw a fashion show presented by the Home Economics Department of the Drexel Institute of Technology.

prepared students for their future

The office practice classes which were held in Mrs. Hammer's room were given instruction on operating the new Monroe "800" calculating machine and the new Dictaphone recorder, which increased the quantity and variety of office machines available for the students' use. Both machines were greatly appreciated additions for training our future office workers. New typewriters were a welcome addition to Mrs. deFuria's beginning and personal typing classes, too.

The commercial students took field trips which were related to the subjects they studied. The bookkeeping classes toured the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, and the twelfth grade business English class visited Philadelphia's post office, where they saw first hand the new mail flow system and other procedures involved in carrying out our mail service.

Physical fitness in theory and use

Responding to President Kennedy's appeal for increased physical fitness, Mr. Stengel conducted a physical fitness program among the senior high boys in the fall and the spring.

In an assembly in April, teams of tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grade boys competed for the senior high boys' annual volleyball title. The senior boys copped the title which previously belonged to last year's seniors.

After the regular hockey season, the senior high girls concentrated on volleyball skills. In March, junior and senior girls were chosen by Miss Knopf to attend a volleyball Play Day at Nether-Providence. Our girls placed second, and all who attended the activity enjoyed the friendly competition.

As in past years, the seventh and tenth grades studied health. This year the juniors from Folcroft also completed their state health requirements for graduation from high school.

Activities and Sports

Sports and activities play a major part in our school life at Sharon Hill.

The good sportsmanship, tact, co-operation, teamwork, responsibility and wisdom acquired through participation in these sports and activities are not soon to be forgotten. When each of us looks back upon our school days, you may be sure that the sports and activities in which we have taken an active interest will lay uppermost in our mind. Besides the memory of busy, productive, and profitable moments, the hours of drill, practice, and learning of the basic rules of each sport or activity will remind us that every worthwhile accomplishment in life takes hard work, perseverance, and sacrifices.

Just as the brakeman's guiding hand signals the engineer so that the couplers of the cars will meet and close in a firm grip, holding the train together, the guiding hand of our faculty conducts us through these sports and activities so that they may be "coupled" with our school work, providing us with more meaningful, well-balanced, and happy, educational memories.

Our sports and activities also connect the community with the school. The good-natured competition promoted by the sports and activities arouse an interest among the citizens of near-by towns. These citizens support, and thus inspire, our students to participate in, these extra-curricular school activities.

Students work

The Student Council this year, as in other years, continued to expand and improve. Many new ideas and activities were introduced.

The Student Council initiated a set procedure for the election of homeroom representatives, which reduced the confusion formerly connected with the voting system. Teachers conducted the homeroom elections, and the Student Council tallied the ballots and announced the official results.

A more sincere interest in the student government has stemmed from the mimeographing of the minutes of the council's meetings. Their prompt distribution, inaugurated this year, enabled each member of the student body to follow the proceedings of each meeting held.

The first annual Student Council Talent Show was held on January 26 this year. Due to the overwhelming acceptance of the first show, future shows are sure to be scheduled.

One of the most popular ideas of the Student Council was the addition of Student Day to the school schedule. On the combination Student Day —Dress-up Day, the students took the parts of the teachers and the administration. Their mature appearance and knowledge of the subjects added to the authenticity of their roles.

The Student Council, through its efforts to incorporate new activities into the present schedule, has gained additional respect and admiration for our school's governing body.

Over a period of several months, the team participated in three meets at various area schools where they matched their academic knowledge with other local teams. The Hi-Q meets were aired on the radio Sunday afternoons under the sponsorship of the Scott Paper Company.

The annual edition of the school yearbook was the result of over a year of far-sighted planning. Many minds and hands entered into the production of this permanent collection of memories. The busy OWL staff began the project months ago with the selection of the theme—"Railroading." Then Editor Claire Blackburn organized her staff to prepare the annual; photographs had to be taken, copy penned, art work drawn; and, as a prerequisite, the OWL had to be advertised and sold. Although delays were suffered, tempers frayed, and deadlines sometimes rushed, the 1962 OWL finally materialized.

"Sing along with us"

Our holiday programs would not have been complete without the entertainment provided by the Senior Chorus.

The chorus members were chosen by Mrs. Bustard from the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. She chose the members not only for their singing ability, but also for their willingness to attend rehearsals and performances. In addition to the regular Monday afternoon rehearsals, the chorus frequently met before school to perfect their songs.

The Senior Chorus featured the Shatones, a vocal group composed of four Junior and three Senior girls. Wearing black dresses trimmed with red and white, the Shatones sang at school assemblies and numerous community functions.

Concluding the Senior Chorus's agenda was the Spring Concert, held in April, when the Chorus offered a varied repertoire of musical selections.

Senior Chorus officers—Treasurer Suzanne Albaugh, Secretary Judy Clarenbach, President Jim Buchanan, and Vice-President Sam Rock—take time off from their many duties to plan the chorus's "first-ever" record dance.

The Sharon Hill band, under the direction of Mr. Childs, was one of the most active groups in the school. During the school year, the band played at pep rallies, football games, and parades. They concluded their season with an annual concert in April.

On May 4 and 5, 1962, the entire band was rewarded with a weekend trip to Watsontown, Pennsylvania, where they paraded at the Annual Bandmaster's Convention. Here, the band wore their uniforms which were enhanced by new dickeys, featuring the school emblem, the Owl.

Working closely with Mr. Childs were the "IMPS," Instrumental Music Parents' Society, who planned many fund-raising events throughout the year. The band mothers sold tickets for dinners which were served in the school cafeteria after the home football games. The money raised by the "IMPS" was used to purchase new band equipment and to send the band members on trips.

virtuosos at practice

The Junior Chorus worked diligently throughout the year with its directress, Mrs. Bustard. The culmination of the group's endeavors was its presentation of various choral numbers at the Spring Concert. The chorus members learned the harmony vocalizing which will enable them to contribute to the Senior Chorus later on.

Mrs. Bustard also supervised a new choral group, the Boys' Glee Club, comprised of Junior high boys. They rendered military numbers at their first public performance.

Part of the instrumental portion of the Spring Concert was performed by the Junior-Senior high school orchestra. This well-practiced group also provided the musical background for such programs as Baccalaureate and Commencement.

The dance band, an organization of highly skilled instrumentalists, entertained at a Folcroft assembly in May under the baton of Mr. Childs. Their repertoire was expanded during after-school practice sessions.

Blending their voices in pleasing harmony, the girls in the Junior Chorus were: Bottom Row: F. Hallas, J. MacPherson, M. Coleman, C. Coleman, N. Rowe, B. Townsend, L. Klingerman, M. Kirker, M. L. # Sharon Hill gridders work hard for success

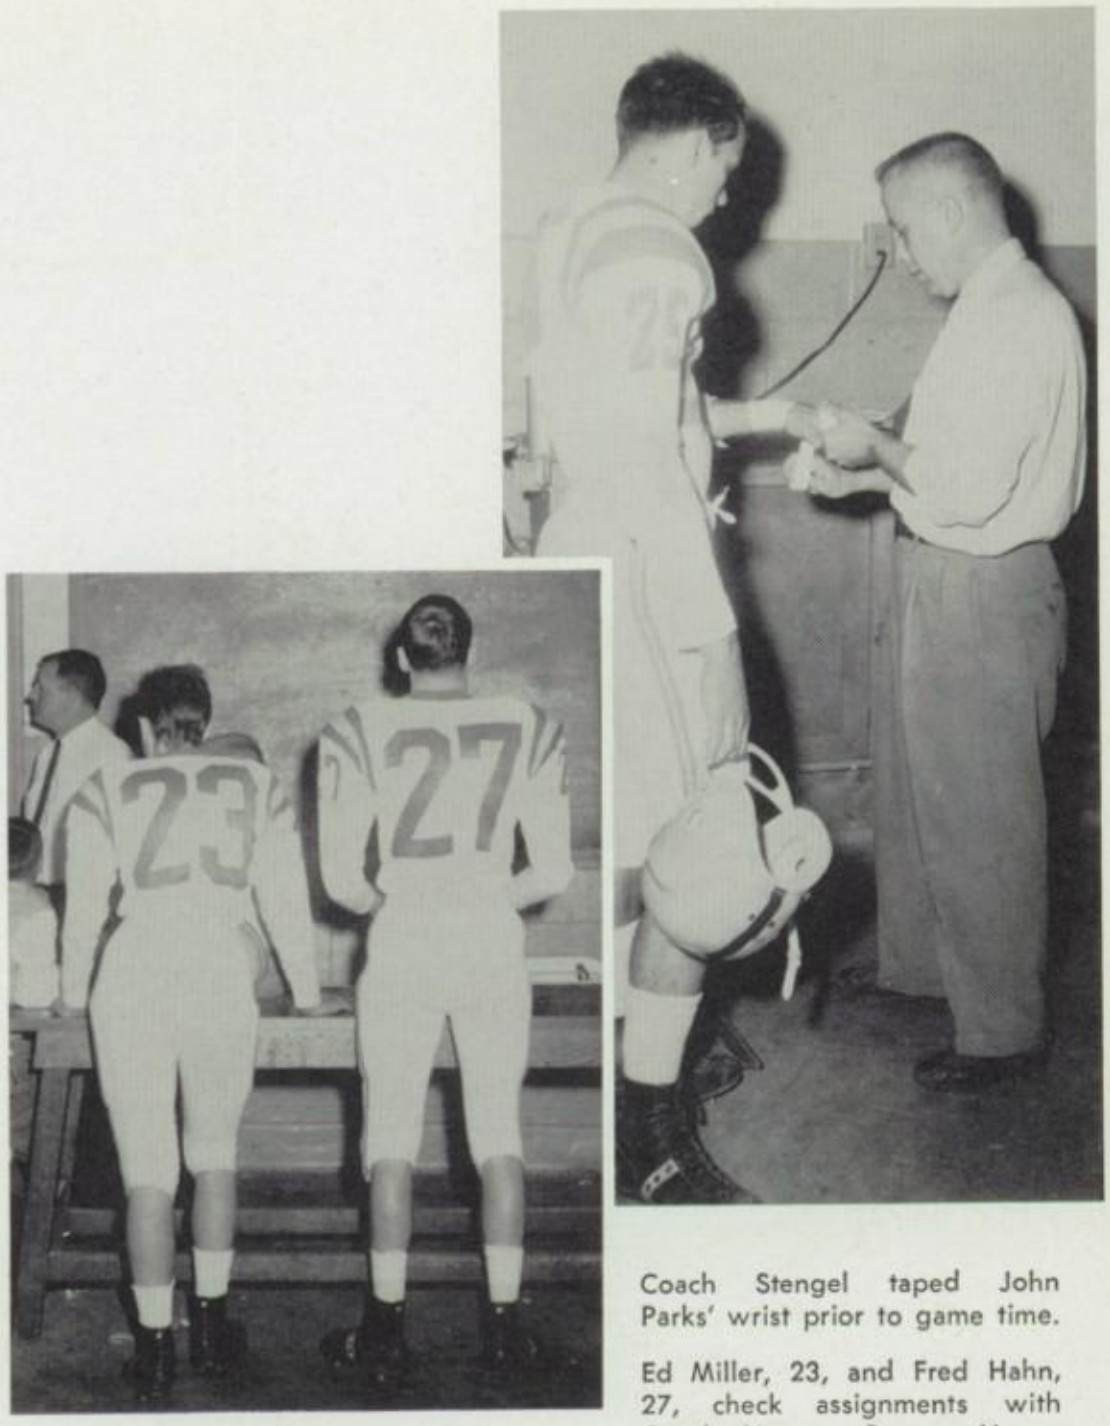
The Sharon Hill football squad, though not large in size, came through with a season which had its extremely bright spots, coupled with periods of darkness.

Late in summer the team attended Camp Olympia in Downingtown to prepare for the fall schedule.

A seasonal highlight came when each team member gave his wholehearted effort to enable the squad to garner an unexpected victory over Clifton Heights, snapping the Rams' nineteen-game winning streak.

In the annual Thanksgiving game arch-rival Collingdale dealt the team and the Owl fans a heart-breaking blow by coming from behind in the last thirty seconds to take possession of the coveted Golden Shoe.

The boys who remain on the squad are certain to use their valuable experience in compiling an even better record next year.



Coach Stengel taped John Parks' wrist prior to game time.

The 1961 Hockey season proved to be one of the best in many years. Our girls seemed to have more spark and stamina than ever after a week of drills in hockey skills at Camp Tegawitha in the Poconos.

Many more spectators attended their games, and the band made an appearance at the rainy game on Collingdale field. Although it was a pretty dull day, it certainly didn't dampen our girls' spirits. They came home victorious.

Pep rallies for our hockey games were started by the Senior Varsity players. Inspiring pep talks were given by the coaches, and songs of cheer were sung by the crowds that attended.

Ending the triumphant season, which included a Junior Varsity record of three wins, three losses, and two ties, a dinner was held at Marra's to honor the 1961 team members, managers, and coaches.

The 1962 basketball season for Sharon Hill's "Owls" was certainly the most successful in years. The team, a close-knit group of determined young men, set out in early December for the first basketball game of the year against Nether Providence. They never lost their determination throughout the gruelling months of the campaign, and it paid off with a District I championship. The team finally came to the end of the line at Reading in the Eastern Regional Semi-Finals when it lost by three points to Jim Thorpe, soon to become the Pennsylvania Class "C" champions.

Although the entire squad played an important part in the "Owls' " success story, the brunt of the attack was carried throughout the year by five men—seniors Mike Iannarella, Paul Brutsche, John Bollinger, and Leo Sullivan, and outstanding sophomore John Parks. First-line substitutes were Harry Kerr and John Cartwright, who performed exceptionally well on the court.

The girls' basketball team, displaying steadfast determination during all competition, participated in a series of exciting games during 1962. The squad garnered its share of victories with a record of four wins and four losses. A victory over the team from Darby, a feat not achieved in many years by the Sharon Hill team, highlighted the basketball campaign for the "Owlettes." After the final game, the team members, accompanied by their coach, Miss Knopf, celebrated their propitious season with a festive meal at "Marra's."

The Sharon Hill cindermen, low in number but high in spirit, took home their share of gold, silver, and bronze. Starting off at the Penn Relays with nary a victory, the quartet of Bob Quinn, Ron Selwood, Jack Baillie, and Fred Hahn placed second in the Suburban "B" mile relay championships. This is a feat never before accomplished by any Sharon Hill track team.

Lack of reserves did plague Sharon Hill to some extent since several meets were lost for the lack of those ever-important second and third places.

Sprinter Bob Quinn more often than not gave Herculean efforts to bring Sharon Hill glory. His efforts paid off, and he was the only Sharon Hill representative in the Pennsylvania Class B State Championships, where he placed fourth in the 220 yard dash.

All in all, Sharon Hill's "dirty dozen plus" worked hard to keep up the fine standards of Sharon Hill in the interscholastic world.

"Basically, we have a good team—as such," says Mr. Young to Mr. Smith.

This year the talented baseball team attracted a large number of spectators. The baseball diamond adjunct to the football field provided the scene for the exciting fourteen-game schedule. The three seniors on the team comprised a strong nucleus. To these veterans were added the freshmen, sophs, and juniors, who—although short on experience—steadily improved throughout the season.

Leo Sullivan, who possessed the highest batting average, shared the pitcher's mound with Bill Selwood. Playing the position of first baseman, Mike Iannarella often exhibited his catching ability by gloving pop flys, while Harry Downs, the team's capable roving fielder, was an expert in preventing triples from becoming home runs.

Under the competent guidance and enthusiastic encouragement of Coach Savastano, Sharon Hill's nine compiled an 8-6 record, putting them above the .500 mark. Darby-Colwyn was surprised 11-10 in the spring's most exciting game, which climaxed with the Owls' ten-run spree in the last inning.

Coach Savastano told catcher John Cartwright how to handle the slants of Selwood and Sullivan.

As a program initiated just this year, the intramurals provided an interest in athletic activity for those who were not involved in varsity sports.

After school, co-ed volleyball teams vied good-humoredly, while players matched their skill in table tennis to the delight of onlookers. On a sunny afternoon tennis enthusiasts could be seen wielding their rackets with agility in an effort to return the elusive ball.

Miss Knopf and Miss Teplitz, co-sponsors in this endeavor, scheduled the matches and were always prepared to offer advice and instruction.

The female version of volleyball was aptly demonstrated by this well-timed return

Bill White adroitly returned Sam Rock's serve in an intramural tennis match.

Underclass

The majority of trains which pass through Sharon Hill are cargo-carrying trains; they provide a great medium of connection between manufacturing companies and their customers. Just as this type of train transfers the goods from factory to buyer, our high school is responsible for transferring its students, the underclassmen, from the starting point of their academic journey to their destinations—college or a career.

On trains which carry both cargo and passengers, the freight is usually located directly behind the express and mail cars and ahead of the passenger-carrying cars. Therefore, in our yearbook this year, we have placed the cargo of underclassmen before the senior passengers in keeping with our "On the Tracks" theme.

Sharon Hill High School, which has both seniors and underclassmen, can be compared to the Pennsylvania Railroad System, which handles both passengers and freight. Sun Valley High School, a new Delaware County school, has no seniors this year and can be compared to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad which carries only cargo locally.

The railroads receive profits for shipping freight and transporting passengers. Our railroad, Sharon Hill High School, also needs cargo in order to profit; no high school can operate efficiently without underclassmen.

This year the Junior Class was composed of quite a few more students and a little more noise than in previous years, due to the acquisition of the eleventh grade from the Folcroft Borough.

Class members displayed their dramatic ability in the Junior Play, a comedy entitled "The Loud Red Patrick." Proceeds from the play resulted in an increased class treasury.

During its successful pre-holiday candy sale, the juniors sold boxes and boxes of the choicest candies, packed in festive Christmas wrappings.

The theme of the Junior Prom, "Fantasy in Frost," provided an excellent opportunity for the students to exercise their imaginations as they transformed the gym into a winter wonderland. The highlight of the evening arrived when Tom Russell, the class president, presented a dainty prom key to Prom Queen Heather Kitching.

Right: Harry Kerr, Vice-President; Tom Russell, President; Lois Brown, Secretary; and Stan Eichinger, Treasurer, check the Junior play programs prior to the rising curtain.

"Poppa, it makes a noise!" Rosalie (Bunky Baxter) exclaims to Patrick (Harry Kerr) and Rita (Lynda Singley).

Seniors

The senior year at Sharon Hill High School may be compared to the first class car on a railroad train. Each senior, as a passenger, has contributed something to be in that car for the final stop at graduation. For most, that something has been twelve years of preparation for their life in the outside world. While approaching the final stop they find that graduation is actually a terminal from which each senior selects the next car in which he would like to journey.

For some this new track may represent college. After graduating from college, a trip which requires at least four years of study, the passengers transfer to a permanent route, their chosen professions. The itinerary for others may include immediate employment.

By the time a student has reached his senior year, he has found that the pleasures of life are worth working for; the ride was well worth the fare. The years spent in school are ones never forgotten, just as a long, profitable trip is not soon forgotten by the passenger.

The seniors realize that just as the railroad was built for the benefit of the passengers, so the schools were built for the benefit of the students. Memories will only linger, but the knowledge attained will thrive forever.

Above: "Jack-of-all-trades" Baillie and versatile Virginia Heller demonstrate their all-round ability. For their varied talents they were chosen as "Most Versatile."

Right: Ready to face the challenges of tomorrow are Betty Hasson and Tom Butterfield, our choices as "Most Likely to Succeed."

Below: Here's Claire Blackburn sprucing up Bob Waldraff's "kicks." Their neat appearance gained them the title of "Best Groomed."

Below: Mike Iannarella and Andrea Paul go through the antics which prove them to be the "Most Witty" members of the Class of '62.

1962 Seniors selected

Above: Student Council members must be "Most Dependable." Lois Themens and Ronnie Selwood typify this quality.

Above: Leo Sullivan and Judy Clarenbach, voted as having the "Best Personality," show that "it's nice to be important, but important to be nice."

Below: Molding and expressing ideas into realities are the fortes of Bonnie Johnson and Donald Aiello, who were voted "Most Creative."

January 28, 1962

June 6, 1962

Left: While Barb discussed her job with Mrs. Hammer, Van and Mr. Kuebler had a serious tête-à-tête. .

Below: Worn out, Glenn dropped down to recuperate where he was while Andi, Ginger, and Joe waited.

Beauty and the beat highlighted May Day

Surrounded by her court, Ruth enjoys her position next to May King Ronnie Selwood.

May Day took on a new appearance this year as rhythmic themes from "West Side Story" and "Breakfast at Tiffany's" were featured. Cha-chas and interpretive dance numbers entertained the large crowd, who at noon had snacked and had tried their luck at the fish pond booth set up by the elementary mothers. Our student choreographer, Jane Anderson, ably aided Miss Knopf in creating the dances and directing the pageant; and she also performed a solo ballet before the throne.

King Ronald Selwood, chosen through competitive track and field events, marched forward to the strains of "Coronation March." As the highlight of the program he crowned our sparkly-eyed May Queen Ruth Moore while her ladies-in-waiting looked on. The traditional maypole dance and recessional ended the pageant on a graceful note.

Ruth was again honored at the festive May Dance, where she and her escort danced to an eleven-piece band.

After modeling their charms before the assembly, the May Queen candidates—R. Moore, V. Heller, L. Themens, N. Stuart, A. Paul, B. Johnson, L. Holt, C. Blackburn, and J. Clarenbach—wait for results of the voting.

The three faces of Ruth Moore show our May Queen's obvious poise and beauty.

Advertise

Railroad companies depend upon the business from their customers, the travelers and commuters, to supply the funds necessary for operating costly railroad lines. In a similar manner, the livelihood of our yearbook depended upon the businessmen who supplied money by placing ads in the yearbook and friends and neighbors who were patrons.

The ad staff of the OWL was responsible for obtaining the advertising contract from various business establishments. In return for the money spent for the advertising space, the name of each business organization was exposed to the consumer population.

Today, because they spend more money than ever before, teenagers constitute a large percentage of this consumer population. What better opportunity was there for an advertiser to expose his name to teenagers than by placing an ad in their high school annual?

Both the businessmen and the 1962 OWL profited from advertising. With the money they gained through sales, the businessmen were able to improve and expand their places of employment. The yearbook, combining the ad profits with the money from yearbook subscriptions, was able to bring its readers a better yearbook than would have been possible on a more limited budget.

The passenger cars of railroads are efficient and comfortable vehicles for passengers; the 1962 OWL is an efficient and lucrative vehicle for transporting the names of businesses to the public.

TAYLOR PUBLISHING COMPANY
"The World's Best Yearbooks Are Taylor-made"

I mailed our final copy;
A tear came to my eye.
I thought of all the hard work—
And how the time did fly.

I thought of Mrs. Beatty,
Who was our "Guiding Light."
I thought of all the times when—
We let up not a mite.

I thought of sheets of copy—
How Janice got them done.
I thought of taking pictures—
For Mike this was all fun.

I thought of Janie's checkbook—
The way she counted loot.
I thought of Jack's ad getting
While on his paper route.

I thought of Bill, pen in hand—
Working on our cover.
I thought of Cos's chaos;
Copy sheets he'd smother.

I thought of Lois, sales chief,
Gath'ring sales with a shout.
I thought of all the others—
We could not do without.

I thought of Ruth, always there,
And our "jack-of-all-trades."
I thought of typists, artists—
No book without them made.

Many more I've not mentioned,
But they will head the rank—
Of those I'll never forget,
And those I wish to thank.
